Thought

A popular author wrote "yesterday is a cancelled cheque, tomorrow is promised to no one, the only thing you have is right now."

At some stage of life we all spend time reminiscing about the past. It may bring pleasure or pain. Maybe we enjoy our memories and their associations. But we're all products of our past.

While we have negative emotions about our past, it is a wonderful grace if we accept God's love in the present so we are able to look back at life so far and say, "I can see God's invisible hand in all that I've experienced in my life, both the good and the bad."

Has the inner pain and turmoil of daily living disappeared? No, but the peace, love, hope and trust in the message of the love of Jesus will ease the ache in our hearts as we live out his teaching "one day at a time". Christ can only operate in the present. Our true self, that self which is of God, exists not yesterday, not tomorrow, but only today. Loving God is "I am", never "I was" or "I will be".

You show me the path of life, in your presence there is fullness of joy; in your right hand are pleasures for evermore.
