Slí Cholm Cille

BEALACH NA GAELTACHTA

於

Bealach na Gaeltachta, Dùn na nGall are a number of walking trails in the Gaeltacht areas of County Donegal. They include four primary long distance circular routes (Slí Cholmcille, Sli an Earagail, Slí na Rossan and Slí na Finne) link trails between three of these routes and loops on three offshore islands, Arranmore, Tory and Gola.

Most sections of SIi an Earagail and SIi na Rossan follow tracks or minor roads. Parts of SIi Cholmcille and SIi na Finne cross upland or bogland areas with no path but provide excellent landscape and coastal views.

Note: These routes are closed for one day each year on December 25th

Slí an Earagail (74 km, Moderate Grading, 4 - 5 days to complete) is a journey through the spectacularly wild and beautiful landscape of north west Donegal. It takes its name from Errigal mountain (751m), whose pyramidic, grey-streaked quartzite cone is almost always visible along the route. Other highlights include Bloody Foreland, Lough Nacung at Dunlewy and the coastal sections along its western edge.

Slí na Rosann (65 km, Moderate Grading, 3 - 4 days to complte) lies between the western outliers of Donegal's Derryveagh Mountains and its much-indented Atlantic coast in the west. The often dramatic and harsh landscape and is scattered with more than a hundred lakes. The route through this wonderfully scenic area links the town of Dunglow and the villages of Crolly, Maghery, Annagry and Burtonport.

Slí na Finne (48 km, Moderate Grading, 2 - 3 days to complete) loops through the mountains of central Donegal, offering wilderness, mountains, glens, rivers, and lakes. Along the sections away from the villages and roads there is a tangible sense of remoteness. Route highlights include Lough Finn, a lake steeped in legends of the superhero Finn Mc Cumhaill, and the River Finn, one of the best salmon rivers in Europe.

Slí Thoraí (8.5 km, Easy Grading, 2 - 3 hours to complete) takes you on a circle around Tory Island. This is a small and remote island of rugged beauty, rich in archaeological and monastic sites and home to a great range of birdlife. From the pier, the walk circles to the west as far as the lighthouse, returning to the pier before heading to the eastern end of the island and looping back. The cliff, ocean and island scenery is spectacular.

Slí Ghabhla (4 km, Easy Grading, 1 - 2 hours to complete) may be short, but it offers outstanding rewards for the walker with dramatic scenery, abundant wildlife and an atmosphere that is unique to Ireland's offshore islands. The route follows the gently undulating sandy roadways on the eastern half and through the centre of the island. Along the way you will pass beaches, cliffs, a lake and deserted dwellings which offer a glimpse a lost way of life.

Slí Árainn Mhór (14 km, Moderate Grading, 4 - 5 hours to complete) takes you on a circle around the island and follows quiet local roads and tracks. The views in all directions along that walk are stunning and the wild and uninhabited interior and the western half of the route is particularly remote. There is a spur walk to the Lighthouse at Rinawros Point.

ROUTE OVERVIEW

Slí Cholm Cille circles around and through the remote landscapes of south west Dhún na nGall. This area, which is associated with St Colm Cille and from where the route gets its name, is rich in prehistoric and early Christian monuments. The route passes through spectacular unspoilt coastal and mountain scenery, including the lonely valley reaching down to the inlet of an Phoirt, and the dramatic valley of Gleann Gheis.

This route is closed for one day each year on December 25th.
